Health Fair Encourages Family Literacy

JOHNSTON COUNTY, N.C. – June 16, 2009 –

Parents as Teachers Specialist, Charity Pate, models how a mother or other caregiver can encourage early literacy and fun with books in a social setting during the Health and Wellness Fair sponsored by the Living Well Partnership of Johnston County at the Johnston County Health Department in May. Early experiences such as this help a child prepare for school. Also pictured are pre-reader, 7 month old Collin Holmes, and 2 year old Hunter Blizzard, blowing a kiss. For more information about Parents as Teachers and other Partnership for Children of Johnston County funded programs and services, call 202-0002 or visit www.pfcjc.org.
